Introductory Message

This Self-Learning Module (SLM) is prepared so that you, our dear learners, can continue your studies and learn while at home. Activities, questions, directions, exercises, and discussions are carefully stated for you to understand each lesson.

Each SLM is composed of different parts. Each part shall guide you step-by-step as you discover and understand the lesson prepared for you.

Pre-tests are provided to measure your prior knowledge on lessons in each SLM. This will tell you if you need to proceed on completing this module or if you need to ask your facilitator or your teacher's assistance for better understanding of the lesson. At the end of each module, you need to answer the post-test to self-check your learning. Answer keys are provided for each activity and test. We trust that you will be honest in using these.

In addition to the material in the main text, Notes to the Teacher are also provided to our facilitators and parents for strategies and reminders on how they can best help you on your home-based learning.

Please use this module with care. Do not put unnecessary marks on any part of this SLM. Use a separate sheet of paper in answering the exercises and tests. And read the instructions carefully before performing each task.

If you have any questions in using this SLM or any difficulty in answering the tasks in this module, do not hesitate to consult your teacher or facilitator.

Thank you.

What I Need to Know

This module is about helping and guiding the learners construct a clear visualization of their personal development through the different stages they went through in career decision. Decision-making for career planning is one of the challenges that adolescents will encounter in their lives. There are stressors and influences which may affect their decision making. However, by the help of people around them, it will be easier to choose a right decision.

This learning material was anchored from the learning competencies, performance, and content standard of the curriculum guide. The content, activities, and assessments were designed according to learner's context.

The module is entitled "Creative visualization of personal development through the various stages that you went through".

Lesson

Creative Visualization of Personal Development Through the Various Stages that You Went Through

We are now in the last module of our subject. At this point, this module will help you construct a creative visualization of your personal development as you go through with different stages of adolescence and the stage of choosing a career. We will also be focusing on the people who might be a source of your stress in decision making and/or could be an influence in your career planning who in one way or another are also your source of strengths in analyzing the right path you want to take.

Personal development is a long process. The influence of your family, school, church, and community in your early life development doesn't stop there. From the time you reached your adolescence stage, challenges will come along your way and one of these is choosing career and setting your life goals. As you are preparing yourself in adulthood, making decisions will definitely affect your plan in the future.

What's In

In the previous lesson, you understood that personal development is a long process of assessing your skills and qualities. Empowering and honing these characteristics will surely help you to choose a right decision for your future. By identifying the components that affect you, achieving your personal development will be easier for you to plan your career and set your life goals for the future.

The diagram below will help you to determine the factors that affect your career decision making.

Let's look at the past lessons and try to recall your ideas and your understanding of what you have learned from the topic by writing it down in the respective boxes.

Factors affecting your decision making	1. 2. 3. 4.
Benefits you can gain in developing yourself	1. 2. 3. 4.
Importance of Career Decision	1. 2. 3. 4.

Notes to the Teacher

The teacher should guide the learners in answering the prepared activities. Incorporated the lesson and activities with the past lesson. Process every activity using question and answer. Integrate a multidisciplinary approach is encouraged.

Research appropriate videos for the lesson if necessary.

What's New

If you're not developing yourself to achieve your dream, then you're just a dreamer

Brendon Burchard

Personal development never stops even at the last phase of human development. It is a process involving many various stages and it's comprises different events, including challenges and adversities. People around you are also a big factor that contribute the development of your personality as whole.

They may serve as inspiration, though, sometimes can also be a stressor. These factors contribute to the forming your development as a person. There were happy moments and difficult times, but in the end, this would help you achieve your goals.

Directions: Draw or cut and paste pictures that symbolize your journey from the various stages of your personal development that you went through as adolescent. At the bottom, indicate your preparation for your plans in the future.

My Early Adolescence (Ages 10-13)	My Middle Adolescence (Ages 14-17)
 The symbols of My Personal Development in the Different Stages of My Adolescence
My Late Adolescence (Ages 18-21)	Preparation for my career plan in achieving my goals.

Explain each symbol:

Guides Questions:

1. How did you feel while doing the activity?
2. Have you encountered challenges along the way of your journey during adolescent years? Explain.
3. How were you able to overcome these challenges?

4. Who were the most significant persons who influenced you or became source of your stress while forming your personality development?
5. How did this activity help your personal development and goal setting?

What is It

What influences Personal Development?

The following are some factors that influence you as you go through the different stages of personal development.

Family and Social Relationship. Social relationships were identified as one of the principal shapers of personality development which begins from earliest stage. Home became a significant place where honing of personality begins. According to Niyaa the author of Factors affecting the development of personality, it is very important to have a healthy and friendly family atmosphere to develop a good and a strong personality. There should be peaceful, happy and loving environment at home to develop a positive personality and for them to identify and figure out how they fit into their social worlds.

Gender, Beliefs, and Behavior. Greenwood, 2017 cited in the “Child Psychology: A Contemporary Viewpoint Updated,” children learn values, motives, and behaviors from their parents and the culture within which they live. This includes their beliefs about gender. The author notes that typical male behavior expectations are independence, assertion, and competitiveness, while girls are expected to be passive, sensitive and supportive.

School Atmosphere. The school plays an important role in developing the personality of one’s person. They make friendship from school and the friends influence their behavior. Teachers also influence the student's personality as the teacher is the person who can change or modify the behavior of his students. The education and the discipline that they could get from the school affects the way they think and decide of their own.

Culture. It refers to the shared values, beliefs, and norms of a specific group of people. The culture in which you live is an important factor that forms your personal development. Culture influences the manner we learn, the decision we make, and the behavior we project. Cultural traditions, environment and values in a society can influence personality of a person. This can contribute greatly to the development of beliefs, and moral values in a person. Along with that culture can also influence the way people behave and develop social interaction.

Who influences Personal Development?

Family always takes the big part in forming of one's personal development. Parents are expected to accept you and bring you up the best way they could. You learned to look up to them and tend to your source of inspiration in life. Your siblings also help you to overcome challenges and support your decision-making.

Peers offer the opportunity to develop social skills such as empathy, sharing, and leadership. During adolescence, you started to make friends with others wanted the feeling of belongingness in a group. According to the article of Boundless "Cultural and Societal Influences on Adolescent Development" Peer groups can have positive influences on an individual, such as academic motivation performance; however, they can also have negative influences, such as peer pressure to engage in drug use, drinking, vandalism, stealing, or other risky behavior. Exposure to peer pressure increases during early adolescence, and while peers may facilitate positive social development for one another, they may also hinder it.

How stressors affect Personal Development?

Stressors is defined in the Merriam-Webster dictionary as stimulus that cause stress. It is the reaction of our body when you feel the emotional and mental tension. The demand of the world causes as pressure and anxiety. Challenges never stops even you reach the last stage of human development.

Stressors are a part of human life. It is said that our body is designed to react to stress to protect our body against threats. However, when a person has long-term(chronic) stress, continued activation of the stress response causes wear and tear on the body. Physical, emotional, and behavioral symptoms develop such as aches and pains, chest pain or a feeling like your heart is racing, exhaustion or trouble sleeping. and weak immune system and a like. When people with chronic stress did not able to manage it properly it may lead to emotional and mental symptoms like anxiety or irritability, depression, panic attacks, and sadness.

Personal Development in Decision Making for Career Planning

The journey in the different stages of personal development is not easy, as we have discussed earlier. It may serve as your guide now that you are entering in another new phase of your life, which is preparation for your future. This is the time that you are going to make decisions on what career you want to take since there are a lot of factors that you need to consider.

Personal development, as we have discussed many times in other modules, helps you set goals and expectations for yourself. Any individual without a vision in life not only fails to deliver but also gets easily lost in the crowd. It is important to set expectations for yourself. There is a scope of improvement always. Never settle and never cease to better yourself.

Personality development is not only about changes in traits but also about changes in other layers of the self. Forming one's identity is thought to be the key to achieve life goals. Career setting is the first step to achieve life goals. It is important to prepare yourself in the process of decision-making because your future relies on this. Career choice is a big challenge for student like you because of the factors that influence your decision making and the stressors that interplay in choosing the right decision.

The article “Steps in Personal Development Planning Process” by Prachi Juneja, various steps in the whole process of personal development planning were stated:

1. Know your goals and aspirations in life. Define your goals, whether they are short-term goals or long-term goals. Remember, goals need to be realistic. Write your goal on a piece of paper. You need to be very clear and confident about it. Be honest to yourself.
2. Do a SWOT analysis of yourself. Understand your strengths. There are very few people who know their weaknesses and areas of improvement. Sit and jot down what all new things you would like to learn which would eventually help in your career.
3. Understand what would be the best available option. You must be ready that you cannot get all the things you want. If the first option didn't work-out at least you prepared yourself for the second option.
4. Look at the positive and the negative side. Learn to weigh your decision. What would be the effect and what might the result? This would help you choose the right decision.
5. Be patient enough. This may be a cliché that patience is a virtue, but having a long patience always results the positive feedback. Always give your hundred percent to whatever you do because anything you work half-hearted result negative feedback.
6. Do not get demotivated. If the results are not positive at the first attempt. You need to give yourself some time.

In the research of Asma Shahid Kazi, Abeeda Akhlaq, entitled “Factors Affecting Students' Career Choice”, the author stated some factors that influence the decision making for career opportunity:

Parent's Role. Parents pre-determine the career for their child and only serve to steer them in that direction. It was elaborated that the attitude of parents and the influence of the home environment influences a child's career path. Similarly, parents' education has been proven as a factor influencing career choice. The research of Kazi and Akhlaq in their research supports the position that parents' education is linked with the students' career choice. The parents' educational level is the most important factor in students' career decision.

But in some cases, choosing a career just to live up to the parent's expectation is the most common decision taking by students at an early stage, which they tend to regret later.

Socioeconomic. Socioeconomic factors are also important in motivating the students to make a career decision. In a comprehensive study by Ngesi (2003) cited by Kazi and Akhlaq in their research, it was reported that students from poor socioeconomic backgrounds made wrong career decisions, and chose professions which required a short duration of training, primarily due to financial constraints.

High Paying Job. Students prefer a job which will give them better opportunity and high paying salary are thus considered most important factor for the students when they harp about their career choice. They choose a profession that can provide for our bread and butter.

Global Opportunity. Some students' preferences in choosing a career depends on the opportunity abroad.

Academic Performance. Career choice may also depend on the academic achievements or performance. A student who did well in school has a better opportunity than those who struggled in their studies.

Different Curriculum Options. School has a to provide accurate curriculum program and accurate guidance for the students. In the study conducted by Dr. Nancy T. Pascual, Factors Affecting High School Students' Career Preference: A Basis for Career Planning Program, she determined that exposure of students to career related technical and academic subjects also known as elective subjects in the Philippines also helps in students' decision making in career choices in college.

Being informed and ready to choose a career focus area in a student freshmen year could help make the transition from middle school to high school easier thus help prevent the student from dropping out of school before graduation. On the importance of integrating the academic curriculum in students' preparation for a college course choice, it is explained that academics should be integrated with career-focused courses so students can see practical application for the academic courses such as mathematics, science, reading and writing.
